A MESSAGE FROM EL JEFE

It won't be long now, the sound of motorcycle racing engines will be heard circulating track at Portland International Raceway for the 40th year. Looking back at this time last year, I am elated at the number of hurdles we have overcome in such a short timeframe. I cannot thank all of our wonderful volunteers enough for their time, effort and passion to such a great organization. The level of commitment is inspiring.

The coming year will present a different set of challenging obstacles. Last year, our financial state was the most important issue on our plates. This has not completely changed, but with rider support, specialty day efforts and outside vendor work, OMRRA is on more stable footing. This year, we can shift our focus and expand our efforts to bring our racers, volunteers and audience an even better product in 2012.

OMRRA's Board is looking to expand our weekend offerings to include all types of motorcycles, race cars, fundraisers and more. If you have an idea or concept that you feel could help, please feel free to come to our meetings. It is important for us to expand our brand in an effort to keep motorcycle racing as cost effective as possible.

I wish every one of you a successful and exciting 2012 race season. I know how hard each of you is working towards bringing your best to the track this spring. We here on the Board of OMRRA are doing our best as well to bring you an exciting racing program in 2012. See you at the Track.

OMRRA is continuing its long-term investment in cutting-edge facsimile technology. From registration to trackside announcer complaints, (971) 229-0624 is the only fax you need to know.

OMRRA GOES HOG WILD

The Harley-Davidson XR1200's, as exhibited in 2011 by Joe Kopp and Chase McFarland of Latus

Motors, are now allowed in both Middleweight Superbike and 650GP Twins.

NINJAS ARE EVERYWHERE

That's right, last year's exhibition goes full frontal assault with OMRRA in 2012. The rules have been aligned with WMRRA for 2012. For additional information on pricing and rules, check out the 2012 rulebook, page 13.

2012 OMRRA BLACK OPS

We're considering re-badging the volunteer program. Whatcha think? Sounds pretty wicked, eh? Know someone who wants to help run a great organization with marketing, event coordination or just strong, loud opinions? Seriously, volunteers, or dare I say, live theater operators, are always needed. Volunteer now before the draft! Join the fun!
